OLD GOLD AND BLACK COLORS FLY TRIUMPHANTLY

Cloverport High School Commencement One Of
- Enjoyment And Credit To The Graduating Class Of 1910--Mrs. Reid The Star.

MISS FRANCIS SMITH THE ACCOMPANIST

As little Mr. Samuel Edward Conrad said, "The starting was fine", and everybody thoroughly enjoyed the program of the commencement of the Cloverport High School, held Friday evening in the Lucile Memorial church.

The auditorium was crowded with people, including a number of visitors from Hardinsburg.

The members of the graduating class gave their parents, relatives and friends perfect right to be proud of them, Miss Hazel Holder, Miss Susie Newton and Miss Beatrice McCracken won laurels with their music and so did Miss Mildred Ditto Babbage, Miss Virginia McGavock and Miss Katherine Wroe. The members of the Junior class were warmly welcomed by their literary sketches. Mr. Mark Partridge was valedictorian and his address was splendid.

THE MUSIC GREAT.

Mrs. Lathrop T. Reid, who is always the queen, the star, where ever she steps, completely captivated the audience by her lovely singing "The Garden of My Heart". Mrs. Reid, assisted by Miss Francis Smith, who should be given a chorus of laurels, taught the Junior class several beautiful choruses.

The members of the Junior class who sang were:
Misses Claudia Pate, Martha Miller, Audrey Perkins, Susette Sawyer, Elsie Nolte, Elizabeth Skillman, Lenora McGavock, Jennette Hurns, Anna Mabel Kramer and Fronie Dean.

LIGHT BLUE AND GOLD FLY.

The auditorium was gracefully decorated in flowers and old gold and black draperies. An elegant C. H. S. monogram made for the graduates by Mr. Harry Newsom, hung over the heads of the mighty.

The young men of C. H. S., wearing their class colors, turquoise and gold, unshared the audience. They were Lester and Andy, Randall Weatherholt, Addis Kramer, Mike Tucker, J. P. Ditschback, Byron White head, Elfred Babbage, Fred Freese and Homer Morrison.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS.

A well-known and enthusiastic educator present, was Prof. Joel Pile, of Hardinsburg. He and Mrs. Pile were guests of Prof. and Mrs. Tanner. Prof. Tanner was highly pleased with the co-operation given him by Father Brey.

"COMET BUSINESS A NEWSPAPER LIE"

Exclaims One Reader of The Breckenridge News Who Has Not Seen the Comet-- Cannot See It in the West.

COMET PILLS ARE BITTER.

A reader of The Breckenridge News speaking to its representative Saturday said: "This here comet business is a newspaper lie. The papers have made up all this just to make their sales large, 'cause I heard a newspaper editor say he would rather have a good lie any day than a good dinner." Not a word could convince the reader, who had failed to see the comet after sitting up all night, that Halley's comet was a real celestial traveler, and that the newspapers to make a living, must tell the truth.

Took Comet Pills.

Last Wednesday those who took the Comet Pills to protect themselves from the disastrous effects of Halley's comet found them to be a bitter dose, and made them see stars galore.

Not a Light in the West.

If any one in Cloverport has seen the comet since it has darted to the western skies, The News has not heard of them. Late Friday afternoon the clouds were pink and lavender and light blue with golden linings, and

A. A. RICHARDSON DIES AT GARFIELD.

Well-known and Wealthy Man of
- Breckenridge Goes to His Reward--Had Been a Merchant Thirty Years.

WAS BORN IN MEADE COUNTY.

A. A. Richardson died at his home at Garfield Sunday morning. His death was caused from heart trouble which had caused his illness for six or eight months.

Mr. Richardson was fifty-six years of age and was born in Meade county. He was twice married, his first wife was Miss Annie Snyder, and his second was Miss Laura Norton, who survives him. Besides Mrs. Richardson he leaves four children, three sons, Messrs. Earl, Ackon and Norton Richardson, and one daughter, Miss Elizabeth Richardson.

Thirty years ago Mr. Richardson started in the mercantile business at Garfield, and during that time he built a splendid trade and became one of the wealthiest merchants in the county. Mr. Richardson was of infinite value to his community, and was a leader in every good cause for his people. His death is a source of regret to many.

The deceased was a member of the Baptist church, and was an upright Christian man.

The funeral was held Monday conducted by the Rev. James T. Lewis and Rev. Mr. Shepperd, of Louisville.

Those who attended the funeral from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. John Bruner, Mr. and Mrs. Blant Shacklette, Ekron; Mr. and Mrs. John Green, E. A. Richardson, J. D. Richardson, Louisville; O. C. Richardson, Guston; Mr. Dr. Miller and Miss Sallie Richardson, Union Star; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Head, Irvington.

A large concourse of friends of every section of the county attended the funeral and pay their last tribute of respect to Mr. Richardson.

NEWMAN AGAIN SEC- RETARY STATE FAIR.

Term Made Four Years To Take
The Place Out Of Politics.

Dent Votes Against Brother To Keep His Promise.

PLEDGED WORD ABOVE LOVE.

Louisville, Ky., May 21.--Placing his pledged word above his love for his brother, James L. Dent cast the deciding vote, electing a secretary of the State Fair. By the vote of Mr. Dent, J. W. Newman was re-elected for a term of four years, beginning January 1, 1910, at a salary of $2,500 a year. The Newman received five votes to the four of Emory Dent, the only other candidate for the position. The vote on the secretarialy stood: For Newman--McGraw, Adams, Scovel, Wilson and Dent. For Dent--Froman, Dorsey, Blackburn and Rankin.

Hubert Vreeland was not a candidate his friends casting their ballots for Emory Dent, in the hope that he could secure the vote of his own brother, which Vreeland was unable to obtain.

Mr. Miller Has Mining Interests in Nevada.

Jas. P. Miller has been here several days in the interest of his gold mines at Battle Mountain, Nevada. He is representing the Nevada Mining & Milling Co. Mr. Miller will bring his family here to live in the fall. Mr. and Mrs. Miller and children will go to Battle Mountain, Nevada, in June. After a visit there they will return to Cloverport. Mrs. Miller and children are now living in New Albany.

BEN JOHNSON IN RACE WITH BIG LEAD

Will Make An Aggressive Fight
In The Gubernatorial Contest
Gore In Charge

JOHNSON WILL VISIT US

(Juo. Wakefield in Sunday's Cincinnati Enquirer.)

J. Rogers Gore, Ben Johnson's special representative in Kentucky, is in charge of the Johnson headquarters here, which have been established and are now in full blast. Mr. Gore says that he cannot see anybody in the race for Governor except the Fourth District Congressmen. In speaking of Mr. Johnson's candidacy, Mr. Gore said: "We have had our headquarters running now for some weeks and we have received encouraging news from every county and every district in the commonwealth. It is true that the names of many other Kentuckians are being mentioned for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Some of these gentlemen probably have never considered making the race, while others may be in a receptive mood, but Mr. Johnson is a candidate and will make an exceedingly aggressive campaign. Mr. Gore was asked when Mr. Johnson would be on the field of contest himself and he replied: "As soon as Congress adjourns, Mr. Johnson will visit the counties of the Fourth Congressional District. After he has finished this trip he will then visit the various counties and districts throughout the State." Down in the Fourth Congressional District the Johnson boosters do not think their man can be headed off. They point to the Congressman's popularity with his home people, his successful management of Democratic interests in the last Presidential campaign and his aggressiveness and courage. In addition, they say that Mr. Johnson has demonstrated that he is one of the shrewdest and ablest men in State politics. He is a cool and level headed and is a good organizer. Mr. Johnson may become frustrated, but has the reputation of usually getting what he goes after and of possessing the ability of overcoming obstacles with apparent ease. All the Democrats who know Mr. Johnson concede that he possesses all these qualifications.

IRVINGTON.

Miss Tula Lockard left Monday for Carlisle, Ind., where she will visit for a month, the guest of her sister, Mrs. O. B. Head.

Mrs. Mullen, of Cloverport, came up last week and is spending ten days the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Ed McFar.

Miss Lucy K. nady left for Jefferson-town Thursday after a week's visit to Rev. and Mrs. L. K. May.

Miss Nell Brown, of Guston, is visiting Miss Irene Bandy this week.

Miss Margaret Beard and cousin, Miss Lillian Beard of Hardinsburg, spent the week end with Mrs. Nora Board at her home on Woodland ave.

Miss Hawes, of Owensboro, came up Sunday for a week's visit to her sister, Miss Claire Jolly. She will attend the Logan College commencement exercises of which Miss Jolly is a graduate.

Breckenridge County Man Makes Good at State Capital

Frankfort, Ky., May 17.--Two important appointments were made today by Dr. Ben J. Bruner, Secretary of State. W. Sherman Ball was appointed Assistant Secretary of State and Jas. F. Harney, of Eddyville, was appointed bank clerk in the Secretary of State's office.

Mr. Ball, the appointments become effective on the resignation of Jack Jackson, of Morris as Assistant Secretary of State to accept the place as secretary to the Governor. Capt. Morris handed in his resignation this afternoon and Dr. Bruner at once appointed Mr. Ball to fill the vacancy. The appointment was confirmed by Gov. Willson, who said that he thought the appointment an excellent one. Mr. Ball then was sworn in as Assistant Secretary of State. He is familiar with his duties, having acted in the capacity of Assistant Secretary of State several times before.

Mr. Ball is from Breckenridge county and is one of the most popular men employed at the Capitol. He has been in charge of the banks for the Secretary of State for more than a year and has more than made good in that department.

Mr. Ball has a remarkable record in the Republican party. When he was only 21 years of age he was the Republican nominee for Circuit Clerk of his district and was beaten by only twenty six votes, which was regarded as an unusual showing for a Republican candidate that year. He is a licensed attorney and taught school prior to his entry into politics. He is a

Mrs. H. B. McGlothlin spent Friday and Saturday in Hardinsburg.

O. S. Lawrence, of Dallas, Texas, arrived last week and is the guest of his sister, Mrs. H. B. Head.

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Brite spent the week end as guests of Miss May and Blanch Claycomb in Louisville.

Mrs. Allis Claycomb and children, who have been living in Louisville the past year, came down Thursday and will occupy their same residence on Maple street.

Mrs. Nellie McClintock, of Louisville, is the guest of her sister, Miss Mary Cornwall.

Miss Lillian Stith, of Guston, is the guest of the Misses Bandy for a week.

George Piggett left last week for Indianapolis for a visit to his aunt, Mrs. Ruben Miller.

The Irvington mill will furnish the water supply to the row of new tenement houses built by the Building and Loan Association on the corner of Main and Maple streets.

At a meeting of the Commercial Club committee were appointed to investigate the Normal for our city. The plans and specifications are under consideration and will probably materialize at an early date. A number of new members were added and much enthusiasm manifested.

Little Miss Minnie of Frankfort, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. H. H. Kemper.

Mrs. Harry DeMont left for Louisville Saturday after being the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Abbott.

Mrs. Julian Clarkson came over from Big Spring Tuesday for a visit to relatives.

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Avitt have received cards announcing the arrival in Seattle, Washington, of another fine girl. Mrs. Avitt was formerly Miss Ellen McGlothlin of this town. Mr. Avitt is a Breckenridge county man and is now having great success in his adopted home.

Wright-Musselman.

Irvington, Ky., May 24.--(Special.) Mrs. Lena Wright and Mr. Thos. Musselman were married Saturday at Guston. They will live in this city and have a host of friends here.

Cannellton Marriage.

Cannellton, Ind., May 21.--The most notable event of the week in social circles was the marriage of Miss Emma Richards to Frank Stein, Jr., of Chicago, which took place in St. Michael's church, the Rev. G. H. Moss officiating. Miss Elizabeth Morgan, of Owensboro, acted as maid of honor, and Thomas Radigan, of Robinson, Ind., was best man. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride.

Will Return Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Warfield are expected here soon from the south to make their home in this city and will live in the Wilkerson property. They are old home folks, just coming back, and will be welcomed by their friends.

Improved Home

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Boyd has been freshly painted in white and gray and is one of the prettiest places in the East End.

Go To Bowling Green

Prof. Tanner and Miss Eunice Jennings went to Bowling Green this week to take a teachers course. The other members of the C. H. S. faculty expect to go later.

Fishing Party

Mrs. Robert Pierce chaperoned a fishing party to Patton's pond Saturday. The guests were Messrs. Francis Sawyer, Elsie Nolte, Lenora McGavock, Elizabeth Skillman and Elfred Babbage, Ruth Pate and Fred Pierce.

Lyons' Being Fixed Up.

Lyons' restaurant at Irvington is being newly papered and painted. The chicken sandwiches will "tast" better than ever followed by a slice of suet pie and a glass of cold ice milk.

ANSWERS EVERY CALL

Cloverport People Have Found That This Is True.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench. A little cause may hurt the kidneys. Spells of backache often follow. Or some irregularity of the urine. A certain remedy for such attacks. A medicine that answers every call. Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true specific.

Thousands of people rely upon it. Here is one case:

C. W. Bethel, 1905 Eleventh St., Owensboro, Ky., says: "I had heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and as I had a lameness across my kidneys, I procured a box and took them carefully as directed. The result was that my trouble disappeared. A relative also suffered from an attack of lumbago that made every movement painful and his kidneys were disordered. I insisted on his taking Doan's Kidney Pills and it was wonderful how quickly they disordered of the pain and lameness. In a few days this person was back to work and the kidney difficulty had disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Plain Talk To His Friends.

Why is it that sensible men and good farmers will continue to pay their money to eastern Insurance Company's when they have one in their midst that has been doing business almost six years and doing it on a safe and legitimate plan as any company in the state. Ask your attorney if we are not a legally organized company, ask him if we are not bound to pay our losses, ask any member of this company who has suffered a loss if we have not met them promptly and to their entire satisfaction. Now, brother farmers, in next November we will have been doing business for a period of six years. In that time we have paid eighty-five cents on the one hundred dollars worth of insurance carried. That does not mean annually, but for the entire time. We began to issue policies when we had fifty thousand dollars to insure. At the present time we carry approximately eight hundred thousand. Now it is nothing to any member of this company whether you belong or not. You are not worth any money to the company, but we would like to see you save your money. We have no solicitors running after the farmers of these counties beseeching them to join. Our constitution and by-laws will be handed to any one on application, they state exactly what the company proposed to do. Why not secure your indemnity at actual cost and not contribute your money to augment the colossal fortunes of the Insurance Companies of the east. We presume there possibly may be good farmers in these two counties who do not know of the existence of this company. To these we aim to make an appeal. To those who have plenty of money and don't care to spend it, we say go their way.

A PATHETIC PARTING.

Last Meeting of William Winter and Richard Mansfield.

The last days of Mansfield were intensely afflictive and sorrowful. His condition underwent very many changes, his suffering at times was great, but slowly he gained a little strength. He had for some time been demented on a journey to England. His passage was suggested for May 4, but he was not able to sail. I saw him on the morning of May 11, 1907. "I told them I would see you, Willy," he said, "even if I were dying." We sat together for some time. He did not speak much, nor could I speak much to him. It seemed best that we should both pretend to believe that he would soon be well, but I knew that I should never see him again. When he did speak it was little more than a murmured word or two. His mind was busy with the past. Several times he mentioned Jefferson and his paintings. "Studies in green they are," he said. Once he spoke aloud to himself. "I have not lived a bad life." Presently I rose to go and clasped his hand and said goodby. At the door I turned to look at him once more. He was sitting huddled in his chair. His face was much emaciated; his clothes hung loosely about him; his face was pale and very wrinkled in expression, and I saw in his eyes as he looked at me that he knew our parting was forever. I went back and kissed his forehead and pressed his hand and so came away. We never met again. Since then I have stood beside his grave. Life seems to be chiefly made up of farewells like that and memories like these.—"Life and Art of Richard Mansfield," by William Winter.

WHY MEAT IS HIGH.

Part of the Trouble is With the House-keeper.

"More than half the trouble with the meat prices lies with the house-keeper who doesn't know how to utilize what she gets," said Miss Annie Barrows of the Teachers' college school of household arts, New York city.

"Most of us," she went on to say, "are like the man who bought four whole turkeys and ate only the 'oyster' of each—those delicious bits of dark meat that lie on the bone. The well-to-do consumer knows little about the cheaper cuts of meat, buys only the choicest sirloin pieces and fails to use them to their best advantage. Few women use the flank fat for which they have paid, but order extra sweet fat, for which they are charged 10 cents a pound. The butcher sends the other back to the smelter, where it is used for soap or made into lard, in which form we pay for it again.

"There are many cuts other than the fore quarters which make good roasts and very pleasing dishes if prepared properly. The principal thing to remember is that a low temperature and a slow fire are necessary to put them into a palatable condition. Anything that is thoroughly cooked is safe, but only the tenderest pieces, of course, should be eaten in a raw or a rare state. I hope the time will come when the lower cuts, which used to be sold to the army and navy for corned beef or turned into sausage meat, will be used by the judicious housewife. She should thoroughly understand the anatomy of her four footed beast and her fowl, because, no matter what name he may give his cuts, the butcher can't change the skeleton.

"In fowl there is of necessity almost 20 per cent waste material, but that is all the more reason why every scrap of it should be utilized. The heart, liver and gizzard can be chopped up in the gravy or added to the omelet of the next day's luncheon, because the less we eat of the bird the more we pay for every bit. Every one knows, of course, that the skin and bones give a delicious flavor to soups and that the fat makes excellent frying grease.

"We are just as wasteful with our vegetables as with our meats," continued Miss Barrows. "For instance, take these beets. The grocer, when he saw that I was to take them with me was about to chop off the stalks and leaves. When I asked him to let me have them as they were. He looked at me as though I were demented, but every old housekeeper knows that the tops may be used like spinach."

EIGHT PAGES.

CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, MAY 25, 1910

Circuit Court, which has been in session at Hardinsburg for nearly three weeks, will probably close out on Thursday. Judge H. W. Slack, of Owensboro, who has been acting as special judge for the term, has handled the business with dispatch, and yet so many cases had crowded up on the docket that it has taken about all the term to get it threshed out. Judge Slack has shown the wisdom of a wise and discreet judge in the way he has decided cases and made rulings from the bench. Both litigants and attorneys have been satisfied with his decisions. The Judge's long and active experience as a practitioner at the bar has given him a clear insight into fixed legal principles.

Sherman Ball, formerly of Hardinsburg, has been appointed Assistant Secretary of State by Dr. Bruner, Secretary of State. Word comes from Frankfort that Gov. Wilson did not want Mr. Ball appointed to this place, not that he had any objections to the Breckenridge chap, but he wanted to name the Assistant Secretary and give the place to another young Republican. Mr. Ball is to be congratulated on holding so securely such a tickle thing as a political favor. We are glad for him because he is from Breckenridge.

It is good to have a friend that sticketh closer than a brother and this is true of J. W. Newman, who was re-elected Secretary of the State Fair for a four-year term. James L. Dent cast the deciding vote for Mr. Newman, instead of voting for his brother, Emory Dent, because he had pledged his word to vote for Mr. Newman. If a man can win such a vote it is a certainty that he will be able to make a great, successful State Fair.

The county, and especially the community around Garfield, has lost quite a useful and successful business man in the death of Mr. A. A. Richardson, of that place last Sunday morning. Mr. Richardson was 56 years old, and had been in business at Garfield continuously for the last thirty years.

Dr. L. B. Morenson, one of the progressive young business men of Irvington, is soon to tear away the old livery stable on Main street in that town and erect thereon a handsome two-story brick business house and hall. He has great faith in that town's progress and is showing it by his work.

We take pleasure in calling attention to our supplement which we were compelled to issue on account of an overflow of real live matter. Our advertisements, correspondents, readers and subscribers are rushing us, and we are anxious to give each and all full value received.

GOVERNOR BANDALA OF TABASCO Finds Peruna To Be An Efficacious Remedy.

Abraham Bandala, governor of the state of Tabasco, writes from San Juan Bautista, writes from San Juan Bautista concerning Peruna.

Abraham Bandala, governor of the state of Tabasco, writes as follows: San Juan Bautista, 6th Sept. 1909.

The Peruna Drug Mfg Co. Gentlemen—It gives me pleasure to say that the persons who have used the preparation Peruna for catarrhal affections have found it an efficacious cure worthy of being recommended. You can make such use of this letter as you consider most adapted to your interests, and I beg to remain, Yours very truly, Abraham Bandala.

Other distinguished personages from Mexico have given similar statements concerning the benefit of Peruna. Prominent among these men of world-wide reputation is Dr. Augustin Rivera.

Siago, Cuauhtlan, Mexico. The Peruna Drug Co.

Gentlemen—Because of the magnificent results which I have obtained from the use of your trustworthy remedy, "Peruna," in several obstinate cases of nasal catarrh, I take pleasure in writing you a testimonial recommending it as the best medicine discovered for such cases.

I congratulate you for such a splendid preparation, and offer to you my services as the first to recommend it to my numerous customers.

Accept my most sincere testimonial, and use it as you think best for those who suffer from the disease which I have mentioned, and I am glad to sign myself as your friend. Respectfully,

Dr. Augustin Rivera. As soon as an impartial doctor becomes acquainted with the virtues of Peruna, he finds catarrh not to be so formidable a disease.

Prof. McCoy Leaves. Will Go To Holt.

CHAPTER XIII.

MARY NAPOLEON.
MERRIEWE sighed with perfect content. The pretty woman sitting opposite smiled at him tenderly, and he smiled back abstractedly, as a man sometimes will when his mind tries to gather in comprehensively a thought and a picture which are totally different. Before him in neat little lustrous stiches stood 7,000 francs in gold, 350 eagles of "Napoleon the Little," 7,000 francs, $1,400, more than half the sum of his letter of credit.

He counted off ten coins and placed them on the second down. The ball rolled into No. 22. He leaned back again with a second sigh, and the pretty woman smiled a second smile, and the wooden man pushed the beautiful gold over to him. He was playing a system, one bet in every three turns of the wheel in stakes of $10 and $20. To be sure, he lost now and then, but the next play he doubled and retrieved. Oh, the American Comic Opera company should be well taken care of! Two more bets and then he would pocket his winnings and go. He laid 40 francs on No. 20 and 400 on black, leaned upon his elbows and studied the pretty woman, who smiled. If she spoke English, he scribbled the question on a scrap of paper and pushed it across the table, blushing a little as he did so. She read it, and at least she tried to read it, and shook her head with the air of one deeply puzzled. He sighed again, reflecting that there might have been a pleasant adventure had he only understood French.

Merriewe slid back his chair and rose. He swept up the gold by the handful and poured it into his pockets, casually and unconcernedly. If it was an everyday affair and of minor importance. But as a matter of fact his heart was beating fast, and there was a wild desire in his throat to yell with delight. Eighteen hundred dollars, 9,000 francs! A merry melody they made in his pockets—jingle, jingle, jingle! And then he saw Hillard coming across the hall, instantly he forced the joy from his face and eyes and dropped his chin in his collar. He became in that moment the picture of desolation.

"Is it all over?" asked Hillard gravely.
"All over?" monotonously.
"Come over to the cafe, then. I've something important to tell you."

"I found them?" with rising interest.
"I shall tell you only when we get out of this place. Come."

Hillard put out a friendly hand.
"I am sorry, boy. I wanted you to win something. Cheer up. We'll shake the dust of this place in the morning."

"Oh, for a vacant lot and a good old whopper! Feel!" cried Merriewe, touching his side pockets.
"What is it?" asked Hillard.
"What is it? It is 450 Napoleons!"

"What?" sharply, even doubtfully.
"That's what! Eighteen hundred dollars! My system will have no funeral tonight!"

He caught Hillard by the sleeve and fairly ran him over to the cafe.
"Nearly two thousand!" murmured Hillard. "Well, of all the luck!"

"It does seem too good to be true. I say, what's the matter with your rascal?"

Hillard looked down at the fluttering end and reeked it curiously.
"I saw Kitty tonight," he said.
To Merriewe it seemed that all the chatter about him had died away suddenly. He breathed deeply. "Where is she?"

"I'll explain what has happened," Merriewe listened eagerly.
"And why did you bother about the Italian?" he interrupted. "Why didn't you hold on to Kitty?"

"I confess I was stupid of me, but the gentleman with the scar was an unknown quantity. Besides, why should Kitty run away from me of all persons? And why, when I spoke to them in the casino, did they ignore me completely?"

"It's your confounded prima donna. She's at the bottom of all this, take my word for it. Something's desperately wrong. Farson do not wear masks and hide in this manner just for a lark. Why didn't you knock him down?"

"I wanted to, but it wasn't the psychological moment. You can't knock a man down when he practically surrenders."

"You're too particular. But what's the matter with Kitty? I don't understand. To see you was to know that I was round somewhere. She ran away from me as well as from you. What shall we do?"

"Start the hunt again or give it up entirely. There are some villages between here and Nice. It must be in that direction. They were about to board the car for Nice. If you hadn't been gambling, if you had been sensible and stayed with me!"
"Come, now, that won't wash. You know very well that you urged me to play."

"You would have played without any urging."
"And who is this Italian anyhow?" asked Merriewe. "And why did he run after your prima donna?"
"That is precisely what I wish to find out," answered Hillard.

"I'm afraid that Kitty has fallen among a bad lot. I'll wager it is

He swept up the gold by the handful some anarchist business. They are always plotting the assassination of kings over here, and this mysterious woman is just the sort to rope in a confiding girl like Kitty. One thing if I come across our friend with the scar!"

"You will wisely cross to the opposite side of the street. To find out what this tangle is it is not necessary to jump head first into it."

"A bad lot."
"That may be, but no anarchists, my boy."

Hillard was a bit sore at heart. That phrase recurred and recurred: "A lady? Grace of Mary, that is droll!" The shadow of disillusion crept into his bright dream and clouded it to build so beautiful a castle and to see it tumble at a word! The Italian had spoken with a contempt lashed on more than suspicion.

"Kitty doesn't wish to meet us," Merriewe bitterly observed. So we'll fight out for Venice in the morning. I'm not going to let me a fool of for the best woman alive."

In the meantime the lamps in the casino had been extinguished. In the harbor the yachts stood out white and spectral. The train for Nice shrieked down the incline toward the promontory. At the foot of the road which winds this to the palace the car was signaled, and two women boarded. Both were veiled. They maintained a singular silence. At Villafraanca they got out. The women stopped before the gates of a villa and rang the porters' bell. Once in the room above, the silence between the two women came to an end.

"I am so tired. What a night!" the elder of the two women sighed.
"What a night truly! I should like to know what it has all been about. To run through dark streets and alleys, a hundred times, and still when a great crisis confronts me you question, you grow angry, you complain, because my reasons are unknown to you. It was bad terror which made me run. I counted not the consequences. I shall tell you why I am lonely, why the world, bright to you, dark, am proud, but I shall keep my pride."

With a quick movement she lifted her

For His Sake

"My husband begged me to take Cardui," writes Marie L. Bishop, of Waverly, Va., "and for his sake I agreed to try it. Before I had taken 1 bottle, I felt better. Before taking Cardui I suffered miserably every month and had to go to bed until it wore off, but now, I am all right."

head high, and her eyes burned into Kitty's very heart. "I am!"

"Stop! No, no! I forbid you!" Kitty put her hands over her ears. She might gain the secret, but she knew that she would lose the heart of the woman it concerned. "I am wrong, wrong. I have promised to follow you loyally without question. I will keep that promise. I am only angry because you would not let me speak to Mr. Hillard. He is very handsome."

Kitty added thoughtfully. "He is strong too."

"Strong and cruel as a tiger. How I hate him! But thank you, Kitty, thank you. Sooner or later, if we stay together, I must tell you. The confidence will do me good." Kitty approached, and La Signorina drew to no close. "I have wrought harm to no one. But on my side they will tell you that I have been terribly wronged. And all I wish is to be left alone, alone. It was cruel of me to forbid you to speak to Mr. Hillard. But I wish him to recollect me pleasantly, as a whimsical being who came into his life one night and vanished out of it in two hours."

"But supposing the memory cuts deeply," ventured Kitty. "Men fall in love with less excuse than this."

"Nonsense!" La Signorina opened the window to air the room. She lingered, musing. "You are very good to me, Kitty."

"I can't help being good to you, you strange, lovely woman, for your sake as well as for mine. Now I am going to write a letter."

Signorina still lingered by the window. Merriewe was pocketing currency in exchange for his gold when Hillard passed an open letter to him:

My dear Mr. Hillard—Do not seek us. It will be useless. If Mr. Merriewe is with you, tell him that some day I will come away. The mystery. But this please make plain to him if he insists upon searching for me. I will only make my unappreciated."

Kitty KILLGREW. Merriewe soberly tucked the letter away. "I knew it," he said simply. "She is in some trouble or other, some trouble, and fears to drag us into it. Who left a letter here this morning?" he asked of the concierge.

"A small boy from Villafraanca."

"Just luck," said Merriewe. "I said that it would be of no use to hunt in the smaller towns. Well, we had better take the luggage back to the rooms. I am going to Villafraanca."

"You will be wasting time. What happened last night I am certain they will be gone. Let us respect their plans, hard as it may seem to you."

"But you?"
"Oh, don't bother about me. I have relegated my little romance to the garret of no account things, at least for the present," said Hillard, with an enigmatical smile. "Make up your mind—we have only twenty minutes."

"Oh, divine allures! And you lay down the chase so readily as this?" Merriewe was scornfully indignant.

"We would travel the breadth of the continent were I sure of meeting this woman. But she has become a will-o'-the-wisp, and I am too old and like comfort too well to pursue impossibilities."

"But why did she leave you that mask?" demanded Merriewe. "She must have meant something by that."

"True, but for the life of me I can't figure out what."

"But I don't like the idea of leaving Kitty this way, without a final effort to rescue her from the clutches of this fascinating adventuress."

"I admit nothing, my boy, save that the keenness of the chase is gone. As for Kitty, she's a worthy little woman and can take good care of herself. Her letter should be sufficient."

"But it isn't! A woman's 'don't' means 'do'! If I don't find her, I mean to search for her and I do not she will never believe in me again."

"Perhaps your knowledge of women is more extensive than mine," said Hillard.

But this datter did not appeal to Merriewe. "Ho! There's something you haven't told me about that makes you so indifferent!"
"This was a shrewd guess, but Hillard had his reasons for not letting his friend see how close he had shot. "A lady? Grace of Mary, that is droll!" He could not cast this out of his Hillard caught a glimpse of the prima donna thought. He finished between this phrase and Mrs. Farson's frank defense of her girlhood friend.

"Time flies," he warned. "Which is it to be?"

"We'll go on to Venice. It would be folly for me to continue the hunt alone."

At 7 that evening they stepped out of the station in Venice—the blue twilight of Venice that curves down from the hollow heavens, softening a bit of ugliness here, accentuating a bit of loveliness there. Here Merriewe found one of his dreams come true, and his first vision of the Grand canal with its gondolas and barges and queer little boatfuls of people, was never to leave him. Hillard hunted for his old gondolier, but could not find him. So he chose one Achille, No. 154. With their trunks, which they had picked up at Genoa, and small luggage in the hotel barge they had the gondola all to themselves.

Instead of following the Grand canal Achille took the short cut through the Ruga di San Giovanni and the Rio di San Polo.

Out into the Grand canal again. As they swept under the last bridge before coming out into the hotel district Hillard caught a better looking one of the parajet. The moonlight glaze full in his face.

"Stop!" cried Hillard to Achille. "The beggar took to his heels, and when Hillard stepped out of the gondola the beggar had disappeared."

"Who was he?" asked Merriewe in difficulty.
"Giovanni!"

CHAPTER XIV.

O'MALLY SUGGESTS.
IN a bedroom in one of the cheap little pensiones which shoulder one another along the Riva degli Schiavoni sat three men. All three were smoking execrable tobacco. The castaways of the American Comic Opera troupe were on the anxious seat.

"Finally, what's your opinion of La Signorina?" said Worth.
"What about her?"

"What do you think of her? She's not one of us; she belongs to another class, and the stage is only an incident."

"Well, I don't know what to think. I've jumped Killgrew, but she seems to be in the dark with the rest of us. That ring and the careless way she offered it as security convince me that she doesn't belong. But what a voice!"

"She is without exception one of the most beautiful women I ever saw or care to see," rejoined Worth.

Smith and O'Mally exchanged a slow, comprehensive look.
Worth rose to go to Cook's office for possible letters, but abruptly returned to announce that the two ladies had returned from Monte Carlo. The actors proceeded to the parlor and greeted the prima donna and Kitty.

"We lost," explained the latter.
"I was very foolish," said the erstwhile prima donna. "I might have known that when one is unlucky one may become still more unlucky. But I did so wish to win. I wanted to

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, would any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

There are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"My daughter was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, head and limbs, and could walk but a short distance at a time. She came very near having nervous prostration, had begun to cough a good deal, and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills she has improved so much that she feels and looks like another girl."—Mrs. C. Cole, Fitchville, Ohio.

Irassburg, Vermont.—"I feel it my duty to say a few words in praise of your medicine. When I began taking it I had been very sick with kidney and bladder troubles and nervous prostration. I am now taking the sixth bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find myself greatly improved. My friends who call to see me have noticed great changes."—Mrs. A. H. Sanborn, Irassburg, Vermont.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman need study to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

ing cash enough gold to send you to America."

"But what was to become of you?" asked Worth.

The question was not unexpected, but, truly, it was a puzzle. I had found a way somehow. Put me out of your thoughts entirely. But I am sorry to say this bitter disappointment. It must be bitter."

"There is one thing I wish to understand thoroughly," put in Worth aloud.

"You have guaranteed our credit at the hotel. By what means?" Worth held her eye with courage.

"With my word," she answered.

"I know something of these foreign tale managers. Words must be back by value." Worth's eye was still steady and unwavering. "If, as I believe, you guaranteed our credit with my word, then I had in mind to get it from a woman—a misgued one of civility?" she asked, her eyes suggesting a smile.

"You are evading us," went on Worth.

"You insist, then?" coldly.

"Contently insist. If you do not tell me, we shall be forced to take our case elsewhere." Worth pressed a button. A servant appeared. "The manager at once."

La Signorina dropped her veil and sat stiffly in her chair. Kitty moved meekly. The manager appeared. He bowed.

"Madame back," began Worth, looking at La Signorina. "Has guaranteed our credit at your hotel?"

"Yes. Is not everything satisfactory?" asked the manager eagerly.

"What security did Madame ask?"

"Security?" The manager looked at La Signorina, but she rendered him the least assistance. "I have given my word to Madame not to tell."

"Then three gentlemen shall leave. Take out our bill at once!"

The manager appealed to the lady.

"You are foolish men," spoke La Signorina. "If the manager wishes to tell you he may do so."

The manager brought forth a fat man and opened it. Out of it he took a fat object wrapped in tissue paper. Very tenderly he unfolded it. "This is a diamond pendant. It is worth at least $1,000."

"I want to keep this simply till I have come to reclaim it. Nothing has been advanced against it. A new suit came into the manager's

ART CRITICISM.

A Story a Painter Told About the Artist Constable.

A well known New York painter told at a luncheon a story about art criticism.

"All art criticism is tolerable," he said, "except that which is inane. The great Constable at a vanishing day at the Royal Academy paused before a picture and said:

"'Very good, especially the sky. The sky is superb.'"

"Then he passed on to the next and said:

"'A sky picture is very bad. Go look at it. The sky is like butter.'"

"So he went and looked and then exclaimed as if to himself:

"'Why, I like the sky.'"

"'Well,' cried the painter of the picture, 'why shouldn't you like my sky?'"

But Constable said it was like butter? It explained, confessed, the story.

"So A in a furious rage strode up to Constable and shouted:

"'Constable, you're a humbug. I never asked for your opinion about my picture, yet you came to me and praised it. You said that especially you liked my sky. Then at once you go off and tell some one else that my sky is like butter.'"

"Constable listened, with a smile. He was not at all confused.

"'My dear fellow, you don't understand,' said 'I like butter.'—Los Angeles Times.

Ask Them About It.

For many years physicians and nurses have considered Kemp's Balsam the best cough cure. Every druggist and dealer in medicine sells and recommends Kemp's Balsam. Ask the doctor, the nurse, or the druggist about it. It is for cough, irritation of the throat, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles. The price is 25c, a bottle.

SHE KNEW THE GAME.

A Nice Old Chicago Lady Who Was a Baseball "Fan."

I remember being on a Chicago street car, my little Parker Butler in a nice dress, sitting beside a nice old lady in mourning a year or so ago. She was nervous and kept glancing at me and fidgeting again. I made me uncomfortable. I thought she took me for a pickpocket or some other bad man. Finally she could contain herself no longer. She leaned over, 'Excuse me,' she said, 'but have you heard yet how the Cubs game came out?'

I hadn't, and she face fell, but in a moment she saw a possible opportunity for consolation.

"Well," she asked, "can you tell me who they are putting in the box to day?"

"No," was that for a gray haired grandma?

In Chicago they all talk baseball from the cradle to the grave. Until 3 o'clock in the afternoon during the baseball season no one talks about anything but the game of the day before. From 3 o'clock on the only subject of the game that is being played. The woman I was conversing with said she was a fan and she could tell me all the players with three apples and make five apples with any certainty of correctness. Ask Eugene out the standing of the Cubs, who were the home team and a pen-bill that will make a mark only when it is held straight up and down.

The Umpire at Home.

"Billy Evans sat alone in his home the other evening meditating on the approaching baseball season which would bring his return to the arduous umpiring pursuit.

He was thinking of a number of vexatious features of his calling, when his thoughts were interrupted by the ringing of the telephone bell. Some woman desired to talk to Evans' wife, who did not happen to be at home.

"She's out," shouted Evans, absent-mindedly, in such a thunderous tone that he nearly ruined the poor woman's ear drum—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Mr. Thomas' Electric Oil is the best remedy for that old fat! disease—croup. Has been used with success in our family for eight years."—Mrs. L. Whitcomb.

Sidingsham Education.

The teacher of one of the grades in a primary school was astonished to receive the following communication from the parent of a pupil:

"Dear Sir—Thinking it might become necessary, I hereby give you permission to beat my son anytime it is necessary to learn his lesson. My Tom is just like his father; you have to learn him with a club. Just you please note him the way I want. Don't pay no attention to what his father says. I will handle him."
